The Reforma states that the Conclave will last a long time. At one of the next Congregations of Cardinals they will consider the possibility of sending the Italian Cardinals to telegraph their votes. It also states that Monsignor Lasagni, acting Papal Secretary of State, has sent a note to the Nuncio protesting against the possibility of a vote by telegram and stating that perfect tranquility and independence are assured to the Conclave in Rome.

The Italian government has ordered the Italian ambassador to Rome to be on hand in case of any emergency.

THE LORD-DICKEN AFFAIR.

Prospects of a Compromise Between the Old Gentleman and His Son.

NEW YORK, February 8.—The World says: "It is understood on good authority that a representative of Messrs. Lord, Day and Lord, and one of the counsel for the other side were in treaty to-day to compromise the present lunacy proceeding by bringing about a sensible division of Mr. Lord's property."

This is regarded by both sides as the only means of meeting the questions raised, and thus avoid any further excitement.

His heart. He fell flat on his back and died without uttering a word. Mrs. Baker was carried up stairs, where Dr. Dodge attended her and bled her, cutting the vein from her neck. Baker was left lying where he fell, an inquest was held, resulting in a verdict in accordance with the facts. Jealousy, it is stated, prompted the crime. Mrs. Baker, who had been mentally ill for some time, was a friend, the intimacy having existed over a period of several years. She has four small children living.

It is feared there may be some difficulty in arranging the basis, but it is believed that the same has already been expended by the old gentleman ought to be considered in effecting the settlement.

If the details can only be talked over quietly, as the lawyers express it, before any harsh blows have been dealt, there are every hope of coming to an understanding at an early date without the aid of the court. The force of the argument appointed to be heard before Judge Donahue next Thursday.

In the meantime Mrs. Hicks passes the time quietly at home with her husband, and society was thrown into a flutter to-day by a strange scandal in their circle. John H. Jones, an intelligent and educated millman, was the favorite servant of Jefferson Davis. He married in May, 1863, to Elizabeth Matthews, a beautiful quadroon, the property at the time of Judah P. Benjamin. The marriage ceremony was performed in John Jasper's Church, Mr. Davis and Mr. Benjamin both being present. The bridal couple were emancipated by their respective owners in a few months after their marriage. John did not leave his master's service until the time. Then, however, he went to Florida, leaving his wife be-give a grand ball. A grand ball, as the World announced, was her original intention, but which had to be unavoidably postponed until winter had been over.

THE INDIANS.

Sitting Bull Broken in Spirit and Generally Demoralized.

OMAHA, February 9.—Major J. M. Walsh, Superintendent and Inspector of the Canadian Mounted Police, the man who gave Sitting Bull protection in the British Possessions, returned last evening on his way to Ottawa, Canada, to attend the opening of the Dominion Parliament. He was met at the depot by Adjutant General Williams, who presented his regards to Major Walsh. Sitting Bull has crossed onto American soil. He says the British Government would not have allowed him to do so, and that information came from trappers who did not know what they were talking about. He says Sitting Bull is now in winter quarters, and pictures the old man as severely lame from a gun-colored lawyer of this city. This morning her first husband returned, expecting to find his wife faithful and true, but to find her saw him and he was not to be cold. He at once instituted a suit in the Chancery Court for divorce. This evening he met lawyer Walton and cowhided him in the presence of a party of friends.
